

Resilience for ALL During Long-Term Recovery

Amanda Martin is Deputy Chief Resilience Officer with the State of North Carolina. She is passionate about building resilience in ways that advance economic prosperity, strengthen housing options, and celebrate cultural and natural heritage. For the past three years, she ran the Southeast Disaster Recovery Partnership, where she oversaw capacity building and planning projects in four states, conducted applied research, and built a network of recovery and resilience professionals across the Southeast and Caribbean. Previously, she worked as a Principal Planner for the State of Rhode Island, where she led climate change adaptation planning, demographic analysis, and community engagement with underrepresented populations. Amanda is finishing her PhD in City and Regional Planning from UNC-Chapel Hill, where her dissertation examines post-disaster home buyouts in North Carolina from the perspectives of resilience, recovery, and racial justice. She holds a Master in City Planning from MIT and an undergraduate degree from Harvard. She lives with her wife and son in Durham.

Amanda Martin
Southeast Disaster
Recovery Partnership;
N.C. Office of Recovery and Resilience

NORTH CAROLINA OFFICE OF RECOVERY AND RESILIENCY

AMANDA MARTIN, AICP | DEPUTY CHIEF RESILIENCE OFFICER

SOCIAL EQUITY AND DISASTER RECOVERY

Leading the state's efforts to rebuild smarter and stronger.

DATE

N.C. OFFICE OF RECOVERY AND RESILIENCY (NCORR)

Lead the state in building back smarter and stronger

RESILIENCY TEAM

Enhance long-term resilience of communities and natural environment while creating safe and affordable housing options

JUSTICE, EQUITY, AND RESILIENCE

NORTH CAROLINA OFFICE OF RECOVERY AND RESILIENCY

THANK YOU

AMANDA MARTIN, AICP | AMANDA.MARTIN@NCDPS.GOV | (984) 833-4360

