

Retail Sources for Coastal NC Native Plants

Revised June, 2020 (Updated annually)

The following are not exclusively native plant nurseries, but are known to stock select North Carolina native plants that will thrive in the coastal region. It is suggested that consumers build a relationship with knowledgeable staff at a local business who may be able to assist in locating or growing specific plants. Having realistic expectations and a plant list with scientific / botanical names, will endear you to your nurseryman and ensure you get the plants you intended to purchase.

If straight or wild species are not available, it is recommended purchasing indigenous or native species “cultivars” rather than “hybrids.” Avoid selecting invasive plants. Lists of known and potential invasive plants are maintained by the NC Native Plant Society (https://ncwildflower.org/plant_galleries/invasives) and the NC Native Plant Council (<http://nc-ipc.weebly.com/coastal-plain-invasive-plants.html>).
